Dear Ashley,

I got a real kick out of your sermon! Whoa, Boy! You really let us have it. But I have a problem. I can't find where Jesus backs up what you say. I mean, Ashley, we're Christians, so Jesus must have said what you said, but I can't find it.

He had to have said something like this:

"Ok, fellas. You husbands will be my representatives after I am gone. Make sure you preach this.

I mean, look, I know I gave the girls the wrong impression by telling them stuff such as me being the real Messiah, and letting Mary sit down with all the men while I taught, and telling that gentile woman that I was to be the savior of the gentiles, too, was a slip of the tongue. I don't know what happened at the tomb. For some reason, I couldn't resist playing a trick on Mary. You know me, I really meant to tell all you guys these things first."

But just forget about all that. Get your wives under control. This way when the Spirit comes, you will be part of the Trinity, uh... I mean, Quartet – Father, Son, Spirit, Husbands."
